Mill race, sluice gate and two stone bridges across Morland Beck

No.	Type		Name and location	Age		Local significance reason	Detailed Description
NDHA1		A building	Mill race, sluice gate and two stone bridges across Morland Beck, Water Street, Morland	✓	Pre 1850	This area is an old unchanged scenic part of the village, representing an historic working area of the village. Now providing a lovely level walk, the mill race is criss-crossed with local limestone slab bridges, offering views up and down the river, to fields, trees and views beyond. Regularly used for many whole village events (picnics, street parties, duck races and school projects) the mill race has an information board and varied planting including wild flowers. Integral to the race is a charming fully functioning wooden sluice gate with a metal mechanism, for use now as in the past, to slow or improve the flow of water down the race.	Traditional millrace, previously used to power a mill wheel. Traditional sluice, integral to the function of the Mill Race. Stone slab bridge, providing access across the Beck.

Donkey Field

No.	Type		Name and location	Age		Local significance reason	Detailed Description
NDHA2		A building	Donkey Field, Well Lane, Morland	✓	Pre 1850	A now rare open space in an Eden valley village, this field provides a green all year view displaying myriad wild flowers spring to Autumn. Currently the field offers light grazing to donkeys and chickens, according to older local residents, it was ever thus. The field is attached to what was one of the oldest farms in the village. The field allows long views to trees and fells beyond. Please see appendix on consultation.	Open field, bordered by traditional properties on one side and redeveloped farm buildings to the other, with open vistas at either end.

Drying Field

No.	Type		Name and location	Age		Local significance reason	Detailed Description
NDHA11	✓	A building	Mill Yard Café, High Street, Morland	✓	Pre 1850	The Mill yard in Morland is a characterful historical area. It has functioned in the past as a working mill and now houses a flourishing popular café, functioning as a vital village hub and tourist attraction.	The Mill buildings form a pleasing 'U' shape, hugging a quaint courtyard. The building's scale and stonework are immensely characterful, displaying small paned windows and surrounds in keeping with vernacular style. The buildings are well kept and offer an interesting view of differing heights, forming a truly attractive setting.
